

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION.

A rule-based cryptographic services module is provided by way of a CAPI interface so as to provide security services over a plurality of protocols. The rule-based module applies logical rules to processing results provides from the plurality of protocols to identify an appropriate processing method for each request for security services received by the module. Accordingly, a greater degree of efficiency and speed are provided when processing cryptographic services requests over the CAPI interface.